ROUTE DESCRIPTION

The views after leaving Bridgton hint of the fun to come, as we begin our approach to the White Mountains. We ride through Lovell, with a rest stop at the Lovell Historical Society, into Center Lovell and past Kezar Lake, then skirt the White Mountain National Forest, home of Mount Washington and the Presidential Range, through Stoneham to North Waterford. After our big climb of the day up Cummings Mountain, we descend to the Albany Town House and a fairly flat ride through boglands to Bethel.

The Work of Land Trusts

Maine is fortunate to have one of the strongest land trust communities in the country. Land trusts work across the state to help landowners and municipalities voluntarily protect their land and waters for public use, for wildlife, and for future generations to enjoy. They acquire lands, build trails, develop recreational opportunities, educational programs, and foster awareness of the role conservation can play in meeting a variety of needs in their communities. Land trusts are a vibrant part of the communities in which they operate, and work in collaboration with each other, and with other types of organizations, through their participation of the Maine Land Trust Network, a project of Maine Coast Heritage Trust.
