RIDE DESCRIPTION

The route traverses Maine's heartland, with its rolling hills and rich farmland. In Solon, the route crosses the Kennebec River near Caratunk Falls, where the Continental Army, led by Benedict Arnold, passed in 1775 on its way to attack Quebec City in support of the American Revolutionary War. Later in the day, the route climbs into the foothills of the High Peaks, earning riders the visual reward of the magnificent 4,000 footers along the horizon, before descending into Kingfield to the evening stop at Mountain Village Farm.

RIDE DESCRIPTION

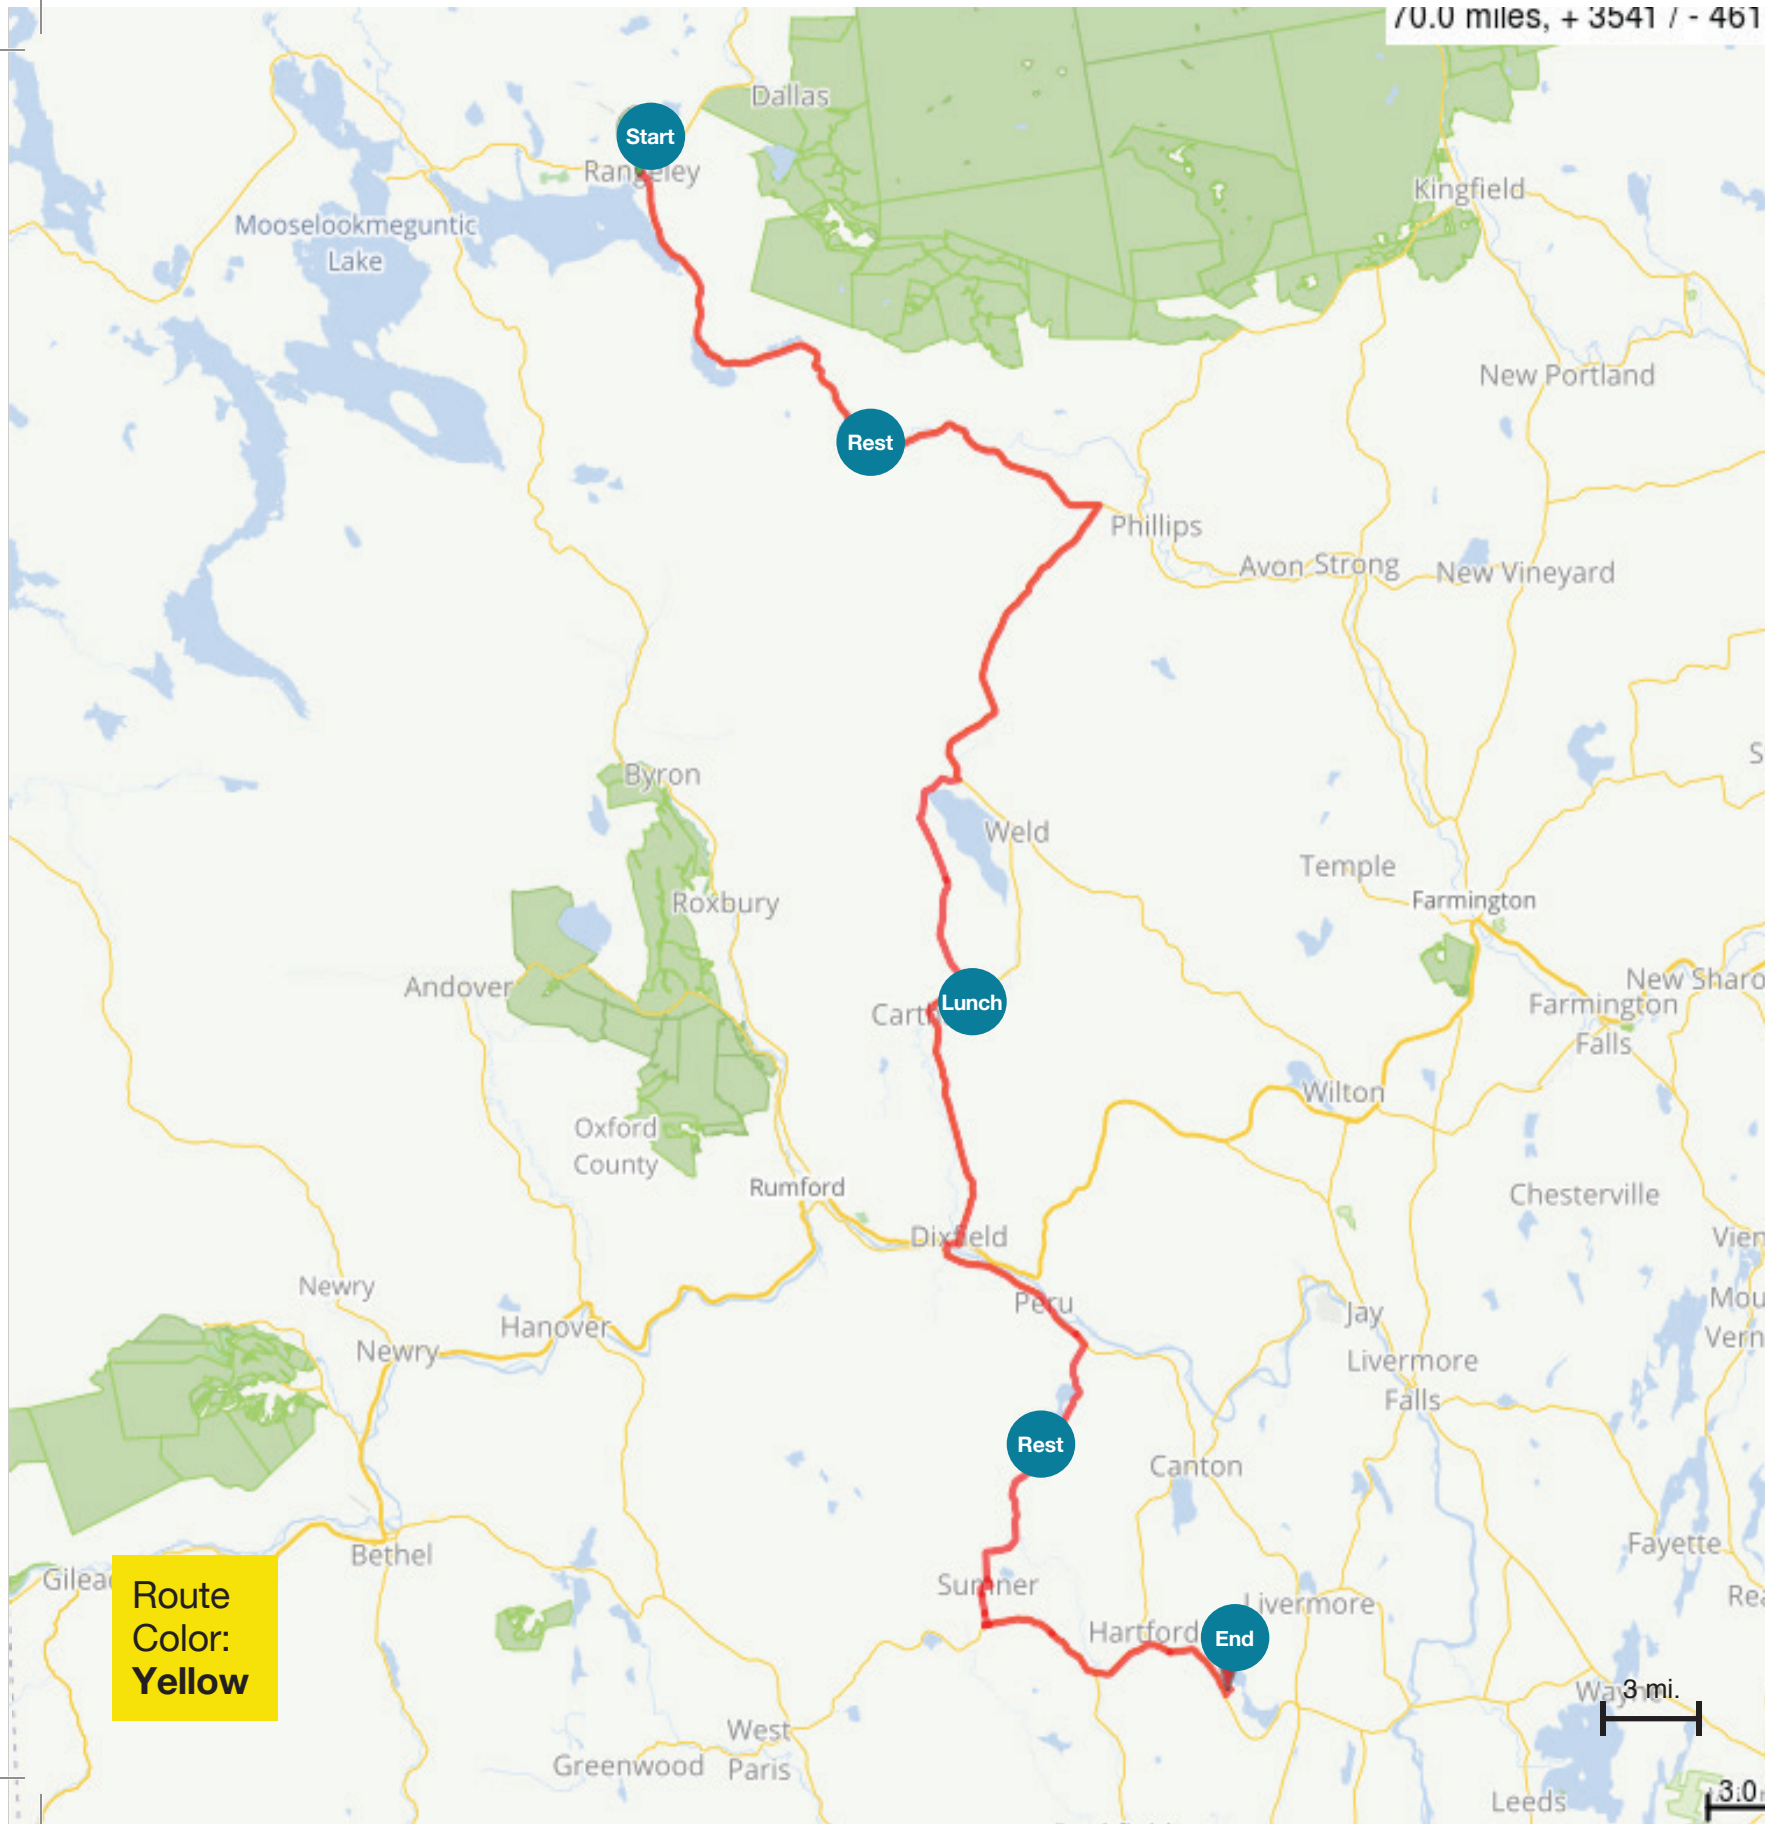

Today's route circles Maine's High Peaks, paralleling the Carrabassett River through Carrabassett Valley, home to Maine's second tallest peak, Sugarloaf Mountain, then climbs to the top of Bigelow pass, crossing the Appalachian Trail between Crocker Mountain and the Bigelow Range. North of Stratton, the route provides beautiful views of both the North and South branches of the Dead River as they flow into Flagstaff Lake. The route reverses in Eustis, but not until riders have a chance to cycle by the stately old growth Red Pine forest at Cathedral Pines. Heading south, the route turns west, along "Moose Alley" through Langtown Mill, into Rangeley, ending along the shores of Rangeley Lake.

RIDE DESCRIPTION

Today's route is the longest of the week, taking riders south along the Rangeley Lakes Scenic Byway to picturesque Small Falls, once again crossing the Appalachian Trail, followed by a multi-mile gentle descent out of the High Peaks. From Phillips, the route heads towards Weld, where it circles the west side of Webb Pond and passes by Mount Blue State Park. The route flattens out through Carthage and Dixfield and along the Androscoggin River, then climbs around Worthley Pond into Hartford, to Camp Wekeela, an impressive summer camp on Little Bear Pond.
